

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

FORWORD

This poem, written more than forty years ago, is now published for the first time in book form, with illustrations by Wallace Goldsmith.

The present intense and widespread interest in aviation promises a ready audience among the new generation for Mr. Trowbridge's very amusing account of the first American flying-machine. This poem immediately attained popularity on its first appearance and has been recited and read in public from one end of the country to the other. Its hero was a youth born ahead of his time.

“Darius was clearly of the opinion,
That the air is also man's dominion,
And that, with paddle or fin or pinion,
We soon or late
Shall navigate
The azure as now we sail the sea.”

FOREWORD

When Mr. Trowbridge wrote the poem he little dreamed that he himself would ever see men fly successfully. Yet from his description of this flying-machine and in Mr. Goldsmith's clever drawings we see an embryonic monoplane, which is not unlike Mr. Grahame-White's Bleriot. The greatest difference is in the result, for with Darius

“Wal, I like flyin’ well enough,”
He said; “but the’ ain’t sich a thunderin’ sight
O’ fun in’t when ye come to light.”

DARIUS GREEN AND HIS FLYING-MACHINE

DARIUS GREEN AND HIS FLYING-MACHINE

If ever there lived a Yankee lad,
Wise or otherwise, good or bad,
Who, seeing the birds fly, did n't jump
With flapping arms from stake or stump,
Or, spreading the tail
Of his coat for a sail,
Take a soaring leap from post or rail,
And wonder why
He could n't fly,

DARIUS GREEN AND

And flap and flutter and wish and try,—
If ever you knew a country dunce
Who did n't try that as often as once,
All I can say is, that 's a sign
He never would do for a hero of mine.

An aspiring genius was D. Green :
The son of a farmer,— age fourteen ;
His body was long and lank and lean,—
Just right for flying, as will be seen ;
He had two eyes, each bright as a bean,

HIS FLYING-MACHINE

And a freckled nose that grew between,
A little awry,—for I must mention
That he had riveted his attention
Upon his wonderful invention,
Twisting his tongue as he twisted the strings,
Working his face as he worked the wings,
And with every turn of gimlet and screw
Turning and screwing his mouth round
too,

DARIUS GREEN AND

Till his nose seemed bent
To catch the scent,
Around some corner, of new-baked pies,
And his wrinkled cheeks and his squinting eyes
Grew puckered into a queer grimace,
That made him look very droll in the face,
And also very wise.

And wise he must have been, to do more
Than ever a genius did before,

HIS FLYING-MACHINE

Excepting Dædalus of yore
And his son Icarus, who wore
Upon their backs
Those wings of wax
He had read of in the old almanacs.
Darius was clearly of the opinion,
That the air is also man's dominion,
And that, with paddle or fin or pinion,
We soon or late
Shall navigate
The azure as now we sail the sea.

DARIUS GREEN AND

The thing looks simple enough to me;

And if you doubt it,

Hear how Darius reasoned about it.

“ Birds can fly,

An’ why can’t I?

Must we give in,”

Says he with a grin,

“ ’T the bluebird an’ phœbe

Are smarter’n we be?

Jest fold our hands an’ see the swaller,

An' blackbird an' catbird beat us holler?

Doos the leetle chatterin', sassy wren,

No bigger'n my thumb, know more than men?

Jest show me that!

Er prove 't the bat

Hez got more brains than 's in my hat,

An' I 'll back down, an' not till then!"

He argued further: "Ner I can't see

What's th' use o' wings to a bumble-bee,

DARIUS GREEN AND

Fer to git a livin' with, more'n to me;—

Ain't my business

Important's his'n is?

“ That Icarus

Was a silly cuss,—

Him an' his daddy Dædalus.

They might 'a' knowed wings made o' wax

Would n't stan' sun-heat an' hard whacks.

I'll make mine o' luther,

Er suthin' er other.”

HIS FLYING-MACHINE

And he said to himself, as he tinkered and planned :

“ But I ain’t goin’ to show my hand
To nummies that never can understand

The fust idee that’s big an’ grand.

They’d ‘a’ laft an’ made fun
O’ Creation itself afore’t was done !”

So he kept his secret from all the rest,
Safely buttoned within his vest;
And in the loft above the shed

DARIUS GREEN AND

Himself he locks with thimble and thread

And wax and hammer and buckles and screws,

And all such things as geniuses use;—

Two bats for patterns, curious fellows!

A charcoal-pot and a pair of bellows;

An old hoop-skirt or two, as well as

Some wire, and several old umbrellas;

A carriage-cover, for tail and wings;

A piece of harness; and straps and strings;

H I S F L Y I N G - M A C H I N E

And a big strong box,
In which he locks
These and a hundred other things.

His grinning brothers, Reuben and Burke
And Nathan and Jotham and Solomon, lurk
Around the corner to see him work,—
Sitting cross-leggéd, like a Turk,
Drawing the waxed end through with a jerk,
And boring the holes with a comical quirk
Of his wise old head, and a knowing smirk.

DARIUS GREEN AND

But vainly they mounted each other's backs,
And poked through knot-holes and pried
through cracks;
With wood from the pile and straw from the stacks
He plugged the knot-holes and calked the cracks;
And a bucket of water, which one would think
He had brought up into the loft to drink
When he chanced to be dry,

HIS FLYING-MACHINE

Stood always nigh,

For Darius was sly!

And whenever at work he happened to spy

At chink or crevice a blinking eye,

He let a dipper of water fly.

“Take that! an’ ef ever ye git a peep,

Guess ye ’ll ketch a weasel asleep!”

And he sings as he locks

His big strong box:—

SONG

“ The weasel’s head is small an’ trim,
An’ he is leetle an’ long an’ slim,
An’ quick of motion an’ nimble of limb,
An’ ef yeou ’ll be
Advised by me,
Keep wide awake when ye ’re ketchin’
him ! ”

So day after day
He stitched and tinkered and hammered away,

HIS FLYING-MACHINE

Till at last 't was done,—

The greatest invention under the sun!

“An’ now,” says Darius, “hooray fer some fun!”

‘T was the Fourth of July,

And the weather was dry,

And not a cloud was on all the sky,

Save a few light fleeces, which here and there,

Half mist, half air,

Like foam on the ocean went floating by:

DARIUS GREEN AND

Just as lovely a morning as ever was seen
For a nice little trip in a flying-machine.

Thought cunning Darius: "Now I sha n't

go

Along 'ith the fellers to see the show.

I 'll say I 've got sich a terrible cough!

An' then, when the folks 'ave all gone off,

I 'll hev full swing

Fer to try the thing

An' practyse a leetle on the wing."

H I S F L Y I N G - M A C H I N E

“Ain’t goin’ to see the celebration?”

Says Brother Nate. “No; botheration!

I’ve got sich a cold—a toothache—I—

My gracious!—feel’s though I should fly!”

Said Jotham, “’Sho!

Guess ye better go.”

But Darius said, “No!

Should n’t wonder’f yeou might see me,

though,

’Long ’bout noon, ef I git red

DARIUS GREEN AND

O' this jumpin', thumpin' pain 'n my head!"

For all the while to himself he said:—

" I tell ye what!

I'll fly a few times around the lot,

To see how 't seems, then soon 's I 've got

The hang o' the thing, ez likely 's not,

I 'll astonish the nation,

An' all creation,

By flyin' over the celebration !

Over their heads I 'll sail like an eagle ;

I 'll balance myself on my wings like a sea-gull;

I 'll dance on the chimbleys; I 'll stan' on

I 'll flop up to winders an' scare the people!

I 'll light on the libbe'ty-pole, an' crow;

An' I 'll say to the gawpin' fools below,

‘What world 's this 'ere

That I 've come near?’

Fer I 'll make 'em b'lieve I 'm a chap f'm

An' I 'll try a race 'ith their ol' bulloon.”

DARIUS GREEN AND

He crept from his bed;
And, seeing the others were gone, he said,
" I 'm a gittin' over the cold 'n my head."
And away he sped,
To open the wonderful box in the shed.

His brothers had walked but a little way
When Jotham to Nathan chanced to say,
" What on airth is he up to, hey ? "
" Don'o', — the's suthin' er other to pay,
Er he would n't 'a' stayed to hum to-day."

HIS FLYING-MACHINE

Says Burke, "His toothache's all in his eye!

He never 'd miss a Fo'th-o'-July,
Ef he hed n't got some machine to try."

Then Sol, the little one, spoke: "By darn !
Le 's hurry back an' hide 'n the barn,
An' pay him fer tellin' us that yarn !"

"Agreed!" Through the orchard they creep back,

Along by the fences, behind the stack,
And one by one, through a hole in the wall,

In under the dusty barn they crawl,
Dressed in their Sunday garments all ;
And a very astonishing sight was that,
When each in his cobwebbed coat and hat
Came up through the floor like an ancient rat.
And there they hid ;
And Reuben slid
The fastenings back, and the door undid.
“ Keep dark ! ” said he,
“ While I squint an’ see what the’ is to see.”
As knights of old put on their mail,—

HIS FLYING-MACHINE

From head to foot
An iron suit,
Iron jacket and iron boot,
Iron breeches, and on the head
No hat, but an iron pot instead,
And under the chin the bail, —
I believe they called the thing a helm;
And the lid they carried they called a shield;
And, thus accoutred, they took the field,
Sallying forth to overwhelm

The dragons and pagans that plagued the realm:—

So this modern knight
Prepared for flight,
Put on his wings and strapped them tight;
Jointed and jaunty, strong and light;
Buckled them fast to shoulder and hip,—
Ten feet they measured from tip to tip!
And a helm had he, but that he wore,
Not on his head like those of yore,
But more like the helm of a ship.

HIS FLYING-MACHINE

“ Hush ! ” Reuben said,

“ He 's up in the shed !

He 's opened the winder,— I see his head !

He stretches it out,

An' pokes it about,

Lookin' to see 'f the coast is clear,

An' nobody near ; —

Guess he don'o' who 's hid in here !

He 's riggin' a spring-board over the sill !

Stop laffin', Solomon ! Burke, keep still !

He 's a climbin' out now — Of all the things !

What's he got on? I van, it's wings!

An' t' other thing? I vum, it's a tail!

An' there he sets like a hawk on a rail!

Steppin' careful, he travels the length

Of his spring-board, and teeters to try its strength.

Now he stretches his wings, like a monstrous
bat;

Peeks over his shoulder, this way an' that,

Fer to see 'f the' 's any one passin' by;

But the' 's on'y a ca'f an' a goslin' nigh.

HIS FLYING-MACHINE

They turn up at him a wonderin' eye,
To see — The dragon ! he 's goin' to fly !
Away he goes ! Jimminy ! what a jump !
Flop — flop — an' plump
To the ground with a thump !
Flutt'rin' an' flound'rin', all 'n a lump !"

As a demon is hurled by an angel's spear,
Heels over head, to his proper sphere, —
Heels over head, and head over heels,
Dizzily down the abyss he wheels, —

So fell Darius. Upon his crown,
In the midst of the barnyard, he came down,
In a wonderful whirl of tangled strings,
Broken braces and broken springs,
Broken tail and broken wings,
Shooting-stars, and various things !
Away with a bellow fled the calf,
And what was that ? Did the gosling laugh ?
'T is a merry roar
From the old barn-door,

Willie fliegt

HIS FLYING-MACHINE

And he hears the voice of Jotham crying,

“ Say, D’rius! how de yeou like flyin’?”

Slowly, ruefully, where he lay,

Darius just turned and looked that way,

As he stanched his sorrowful nose with his cuff.

“ Wal, I like flyin’ well enough,”

He said; “but the’ ain’t sich a thunderin’ sight

O’ fun in ’t when ye come to light.”

DARIUS GREEN

MORAL

I just have room for the moral here:

And this is the moral,— Stick to your sphere.

Or if you insist, as you have the right,
On spreading your wings for a loftier flight,
The moral is,— Take care how you light.

“None of his ingenious stories about other folk is so delightful as his story about himself. It is long since we have had so charming a literary autobiography, and it will be long before we get another of equal interest and value. He was uncommonly lucky in his subject! It is n’t every man who has so good a theme for an autobiography as Trowbridge had.”

“He is known to do a sort of poem, like The Vagabonds (in which he first struck the keynote), One Day Solitary, and Sheriff Thorne, with an authoritative and unrivaled vigor. . . . In a great variety of other poems he shows the poet’s keen sympathy with nature, and the thinker’s serious sense of life; in yet others he charms us with some of the finest strokes of the story-teller’s skill.”
